A Fair Haven (William of Fairhaven)

Comar, he spoke to his attentive squires
Listen now, well, on this day
If you are told that you are doing wrong,
Then here is what you are to say-simply say,

Chorus: I am William of Fairhaven
William the Marshall, am I, am I
I am William of Fairhaven
I'm really one heckuva guy!

The first squire went to a tourney and played there
And stepped on a fair lady's dress
When her lord tasked him, the squire replied,
My lord, I must really confess: (Chorus)

The next squire went to a tourney and played there
And though the blows all fell like rain
The squire replied, when the marshalls all sighed,
You know that I cannot feel pain! (Chorus)

The third squire went to a tourney and played there
And drank down an untended beer
Then blew off the brass hat who then got offended, saying,
I'm not afraid of a peer! (Chorus)

A large group of people came up to Sir William, saying,
Where lies Sir Bill? He will die!
But William, he pointed his finger at Comar, and said,
I cannot tell a lie!

Chorus II: There lies William of Fairhaven
William the Marshall, no lie, no lie
There lies William of Fair haven
He's really one heckuva guy!
